Beaver County Teachers' Institute.

BRIDGEWATER, Oct. 27, 1868.

Beaver county Teachers' annual Institute convened at the call of the county Supt., Jas. Whitham, in the Union School building in Rochester, on Monday morning the 19th inst. and was called to order by Supt. Whitham and opened with prayer by the Rev. J. J. Rockwell, Principal of the Rochester Union School.

A temporary organization was effected by choosing Prof. J. J. Rockwell temporary Sec. and appointing a committee of five for the purpose of reporting permanent officers for the association. After an absence of about ten minutes the committee reported the following named persons, who were unanimously chosen to serve for the present year:

President—Supt. James Whitham.

Secretary—T. H. Douglas.

Assistant Secretaries—Jennie Mercer, G. L. Eberhart.

Treasurer—J. J. Rockwell.

Executive Committee—G. M. Fields, chairman, B. B. Lakin, J. H. Christy, Kate Reed, Jennie Mercer.

Committee to provide homes for Teachers from abroad—Prof. J. J. Rockwell and his worthy assistant teachers, Misses Reno, Gray Mercer, Moorhead, Decker and Anderson.

All persons engaged in the profession of teaching in the county who were present during the sessions of the Institute were enrolled as active members; and during the sessions which lasted until noon of Friday, the 23d, 100 teachers were enrolled; and the average daily attendance was seventy-one, besides quite a number of clergymen, doctors, and book agents, who were enrolled as honorary members, and rendered much to the prosperity of the Institute.

Having effected a permanent organization the executive committee reported the subject of School Government for discussion for the remaining part of the morning session.

Prof B. B. Lakin opened the discussion in some very appropriate remarks, and was followed by Messrs. G. M. Fields, Dr. Brackenridge, J. Whitham and others in brief and practical remarks on the great and all important subject to the teachers of the present generation. Before adjourning for dinner it was unanimously agreed, by resolution that the sessions should be as follows: Morning session from 9 A. M. to 12 M., afternoon from 1½ P. M. to 4½ P. M., and the evening session from 7 P. M. to 9 P. M. Adjourned.

Afternoon session convened at 1½ P. M. Supt. Whitham presiding. Roll was called and sixty-three teachers responded. Minutes of morning session were read and approved.

The executive committee reported the following programme for afternoon session:

Discussion—Manners and the best method of teaching them.

Class Drill in Orthography, by Prof. G. M. Fields.

Class Drill in Reading, G. L. Eberhart.

Class Drill in English Grammar, B. B. Lakin.

The question for discussion was discussed, at length, by Messrs. Eberhart, Fields, Dr Breckenridge and others, all agreeing that by example was the only true method of teaching them, and that it necessarily followed that the teacher should be mannerly if he would teach manners effectually, from the fact that we are all imitative beings; and that the pupils will try to imitate all the actions of their teacher, if they respect him as they should.

At 2:15 P. M. the members of the Institute were divided into three divisions—A, B, C—and given to Messrs. Fields, Lakin and Eberhart each one division, who instructed them in the above named branches for one hour and a half each, as follows:

Prof. Lakin took A division into a separate apartment of the commodious school building and instructed its members in the subject of teaching English Grammar.

Prof. Eberhart took B division into another apartment and instructed its members in the subject of teaching reading.

Prof. Fields remained in the general business hall of the Institute and gave instructions to C division in teaching orthography.

This method of imparting instructions in the several branches taught in our schools was pursued during the day sessions of the Institute until Thursday at noon; and I should state here that the divisions changed subjects at each drill, and by this method all the members of the Institute received instructions in all branches taught. After the time specified for class drill closed all reassembled in the general business room, and fifteen minutes was devoted to criticisms on the methods of instruction pursued.

The subject of teaching orthography was discussed at some length by Messrs. Dr. Breckenridge, Rev. J. W. Martin, D. D., Douglas, Whitham and others, all advocating the anyletic and written methods, also the great importance of teaching Phonetic spelling.

After the criticisms on teaching orthography had closed Prof. Eberhart entertained the audience with select reading until the hour of adjournment. Adjourned to meet in Town Hall at 7 P. M.

TOWN HALL, MONDAY EVENING.

Institute convened at 7 o'clock, Supt. Whitham in the chair. Minutes of afternoon session were read and approved.

Prof. G. L. Eberhart entertained the audience half an hour with a Lecture on the very important subject of "Little Things" and in his address pointed the teacher to many little things he was guilty of doing that he should not do; also to many little things he was habituated to leaving undone which he should do.

Next performance of the evening was an elegant Lecture on the subject "Parents and Teachers' duties to the rising generation" by Prof. J. J. Rockwell which was well received by all who had the privilege of hearing it.

And last, but by no means the least performance of the evening, was a lecture by Prof. B. B. Lakin on the subject of English Grammar, to which all listened very attentively during its delivery.

TUESDAY MORNING OCT. 20TH, 1868.

Institute convened at 9 A. M. Supt. Whitham presiding, and was opened with prayer by Prof. J. A. Cooper, Principal of Edinboro Normal School.

After calling the roll and reading and approving the minutes of the [illegible] Monday, about twenty [illegible] were added to the roll, and another [illegible] being D division. When [illegible] of exercises were announced [illegible] session.

B. Class drill in English [illegible] by Prof. Lakin.

A. Class drill in Reading [illegible] Prof. Eberhart.

C. Class drill in Penman[illegible] Prof. Rhinger.

D. Class drill in Geogra[illegible] Prof. Cooper.

Grammar, reading and [illegible] sions retired to separate apartments, as on Monday, and were instructed by their tutors Geography, of D. division, remaining and receiving instructions from Prof. Cooper in the most thorough, interesting and instructive drill we have ever had the pleasure of witnessing.

If space would permit I should like to follow him through his drill on this and other days on the subject, and publish; but shall have to let a very few remarks suffice. He commences the study by having the requisites for studying, next assigns a definite lesson, then a definite time to study the lesson, and explains any thing that may be difficult to understand, next sees that the lesson is studied properly. In having classes recite he favors having the class recite as follows, without the teacher asking any questions: 1st, giving the location of a country; 2d its extent; 3d its form; 4 its boundaries; 5 its reliefs; 6th its waters; 7th its soil, climate, productions, animals, men, education, &c., describing all and giving the customs, and habits, and business of the people in the country described. He also favors frequent reviews, by requiring some of his pupils to write out upon the blackboard the subject matter of some previous recitation, &c. The specified time for class having expired and Divisions A, B and C having a few minutes it was taken up in general discussion on subjects in which instruction had been given.

The subject of Mental Discipline was taken and its importance discussed in a lively and entertaining discussion, by Messrs Cooper, Dr. Breckenridge, G. L. Eberhart and others until the hour for adjournment.

On motion it was unanimously agreed to limit all speakers on general discussion to five minutes except the opening discussion, unless more time be given by the Institute adjourned.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON OCT. 20th 1868.

Institute convened at 1-30 P. M. Roll was called and minutes of morning session read and approved. Miss Anderson of Rochester Union school read an elegant essay on, What incentives to study should be appealed to by the teachers, which was well received. Next performance was an essay by Miss Jennie Mercer. Subject: The teachers responsibility for the morals of his scholars, which evinced much thought and conviction on the part of the essayist, and that she held herself responsible to a certain extent for morals of her pupils. The question of the teachers responsibility for the moral training of his pupils was discussed by Messrs Inman, Rockwell, Douglas, Eberhart and Gilchrist all agreeing that they were to a certain extent as much responsible for he moral as the mental and physical training of the pupils.

Prof. Cooper next entertained the audience with one of his usual interesting and instructive lectures for about half an hour on the best method of teaching English Grammer, but space will not permit me to give his method, and those teachers who were not in attendance at the Institute will have to do without some of the most excellent ideas we have ever heard on the subject.

After the lecture some questions were asked the lecturer by Dr. Breckenridge and answered satisfactorily, I think to the majority of the teachers present, but the Dr. took exceptions, and there this exercise closed.

The object of recitation was next considered for a short time by Prof. Lakin in some brief remarks and was left without appearing to solicit any remarks further than those made by him.

The subject 'How to make progress in teaching' was next considered by Prof. Cooper at some length, and as usual with his lectures on all subjects was highly appreciated and well taken. After which the association adjourned to meet in the Town Hall at 7 o'clock.

TOWN HALL EVENING SESSION.

The Hall in the evening was filled almost to overflowing with teachers and the friends of education who were highly entertained by addresses from Prof. R. T. Taylor, of Beaver, and Prof. Gilchrist, Supt. of the common schools of Washington county. The former occupying nearly an hour on the subject 'The Teacher,' and the latter quite an hour comparing the old system of teaching with the present, and from the strict attention given by the audience I think both addresses, as they should be, were highly esteemed. After some excellent vocal music by Profs. John Carter, O. R. Coe, and others, the audience dispersed and the Institute adjourned.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, Oct. 21, 1868.

Institute convened at 9 A. M., and was opened with prayer by Dr. Breckenridge. Roll was called, absentees marked, and minutes of previous session read and approved.

Class drills were conducted during the morning as at previous sessions.

Drill in written arithmetic by Prof. Benj. Franklin.

Drill in English Grammar by Prof. B. B. Lakin.

Drill in Geography by J. A. Cooper.

Drill in Reading by Prof. Eberhart.

New divisions were assigned to each of these instructors the usual time, one hour and a half and instruction given to the members on the best methods of teaching them, as at previous sessions. After the usual criticisms for fifteen minutes after close of drill the Institute was favored with a splendid essay by Miss Minta Anderson, subject 'What are the duties of the Teacher.' Next exercise was an elegant essay by Mrs. Marquis, of Beaver Union School, the subject of which was 'The Teacher,' in which the writer displayed an excellent taste in writing and a great amount of sound logic and reasoning. After the reading of the Essay by Prof Eberhart, the Institute adjourned until 1½ P. M.

Afternoon Session.

Institute convened at the usual time and after calling of Roll, and reading and approving minutes of previous session, the Institute proceeded with the following business: 1st Benjamin Franklin, Esq., Chalybeate Springs, Logan having been appointed to hold the annual election at which [illegible] tee on permanent examination was to be elected proceeded with the election which resulted in the election of B. B. Lakin, J. J. Rockwell, G. M. Fields, Jennie Mercer and G. L. Eberhart as said committee for the ensuing year.

The committee elect organized by selecting Prof. Geo. M. Fields chairman, and Miss Jennie Mercer Sec., and all persons having business connected with the examination will address G. M. Fields at New Brighton or Miss Mercer at Rochester.

The remaining portion of the afternoon was occupied by a lecture on Physical Geography by Prof. Cooper, a lecture on Physiology by Dr. A. W. Acheson of Beaver, and a lecture on Theory and Practice of teaching by Prof. Cooper, each of which was highly instructive and entertaining.

In the evening the town hall was crowded with the friends of education who were highly entertained with lectures by Profs. Gilchrist and Cooper, the former on general educational topics, and the latter on the subject "England."

THURSDAY MORNING, Oct. 22d 1868.

Institute convened at 9 A. M. and was opened with prayer by Prof. G. M. Fields. Minutes of sessions of previous afternoon and evening were read and approved, and on calling roll 83 teachers answered to their names being the greatest number that answered at any call during the Institute. The first performance of the morning was an essay on the subject of Public Exhibitions and examinations by M. J. G. Hillman, the subject was discussed at some length by Messrs Rockwell Eberhart, Whitham, each endorsing the importance of both but differing vastly as to the manner of conducting them.

Next performance was an elegant essay by Miss Emma Hays on the subject Random Thoughts.

Prof. Cooper next entertained the Institute with a very elegant lecture on Volcanoes, in which he explained the theories pertaining to all volcanic eruptions in a manner which showed him to be a teacher of almost superhuman abilities.

Prof. Lakin occupied the remaining portion of the morning correcting and giving his method of teaching to correct false syntax, in a very able and forcible manner, showing that he thoroughly understood the subject which he taught, after which institute adjourned until 1-30 P. M.

Afternoon session convened at the usual time and after calling roll and reading and approving minutes of previous session the Rev. James Shields favored the Institute with a very interesting instructive and entertaining lecture for the space of about about 30 minutes.

This day having been designated and announced as Directors day of the Institute the afternoon was set apart for discussing matters of general interest to directors. On calling over the names of the different school districts of the county, but seven directors of the county responded. Viz. Messrs Shields and Imbric of Beaver Boro., S. J. Cross of Rochester Boro., Messrs Fields and Franklin of Fallston Boro., Mr. J. Mellon of New Sewickley Tp. and J. R. Harrah of Borough Tp. Some general remarks respecting the duties of directors and the advancement of the schools were made by Messrs Fields, Cross, Mellon and Shields, after which our worthy and efficient Deputy State Supt. Mr. Coburn, favored the Institute by defining the portions of the school laws of the State relating to teacher's certificates &c., &c., after which the Institute adjourned.

The Institute was andressed in the evening by Prof. J. W. Martin D. D. on the subject of teaching the deaf and dumb alphabet in two seperate addresses of thirty minutes each, which were of a very entertaining as well as useful character. Prof. Gilchrist entertained the audience with one of his very interesting and instructive lectures on the subject of general education until the hour of adjournment.

FRIDAY MORNING Oct. 23d 1868.

Institute convened at 9 A. M. Supt. Whitham presiding and was opened with prayer by Prof. Coburn.

The roll was called and the minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

On motion Profs Lakin, J. H. Christy and Benj. Franklin were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the feelings of the member of the Institute.

On motion Messrs Rockwell, Fields and Laken were appointed a committee to solicit copies of the lectures delivered by Messrs Shields, Acheson, Cooper, Taylor and Gilchrist from them for publication for the benefit of the teachers of the county who did not have the pleasure of hearing them.

On motion Messrs Henry Hice Esq. of Beaver, Rev. W G. Taylor of Philipsburg, and Capt. Geo. S. Barker of New Brighton were appointed a committee to confer with like committees from Butler and Allegheny Counties with regard to establishing a Normal school in this the 12th district.

The committee on resolutions presented the following resolutions which were received and adopted unanimously.

Whereas, We the teachers of Beaver county having been associated during the past week in the capacity of an Institute which in attendance and the interest manifested, may be considered the most successful ever convened in the county, and as we desire to express due appreciation of those who have contributed to this result; therefore be it Resolved. That the teachers and friends of education are indebted to our Supt. James Whitham for his commendable efforts to awaken in the minds of teachers a desire for improvement and to convince them that County Institutes are among the most efficient means that can be used to elevate the teachers profession.

Resolved that the thanks of the Institute are especially due to Deputy State Supt. Coburn; and Prof. J. A. Cooper of Edinboro Normal school; also to Prof. Gilchrist of the South Western Normal, who have so ably performed their part and done so much to render the Institute interesting and instructive.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to to ministers of the Gospel for their presence during the sessions of our Institute, and especially to Rev. J. Shields and Prof. R. T. Taylor and J. W. Martin for their able and interesting lectures.

Resolved, that we tender our earnest thanks to the citizens of Rochester for their interest in the Institute; also they are entitled to our grateful remembrance for having so bountifully provided for the comfort and convenience of the teachers.

Resolved, that we tender our hearty thanks to Messrs Carter, Coe and others for the excellent music by which the Institute was so highly entertained.

Resolved, that we tender our thanks to the school directors of Rochester for the use of the excellent and commodious school building during the sessions of our Institute.

Resolved, that we recommend, wherever practicable, the formation of district Institutes, believing that thereby a class of teachers can be reached, whose presence at a county Institute is a rarity; but whose ideas need revision.

Resolved, that the proceedings of this Institute be published in the county papers.

The last, but not least performance of the Institute was the closing address of the worthy and time honored teacher and Deputy State Supt. Prof. Coburn, on the duties of the teacher, impressing on the minds of the teachers the solemn responsibilities of the position he occupied; the duties and responsibilities the teacher owed to himself, to his God, to his pupils, to the school directors, to the parents of the children in his charge, in taking care of the Physical, Mental and Moral training of their children while entrusted to him, also the duty he owed to the State as the State owns the children and has a right to demand at his—the teache's hands—that all children shall be good men and women.

After a brief address by our worthy Supt. the Institute adjourned sine die, and I trust that all who had the pleasure of attending the sessions of the institute will find themselves greatly benefited and much better qualified to perform the many duties devolving upon them in their schools.

The remarks made by all present seemed to evince great satisfaction with results of the Institute and the general good feeling which prevailed throughout the sessions are tokens of much being done.

T HARRY DOUGLAS, Sec.

THE TWO CLERKS.

BY WILLIAM L. WILLIAMS.

In Market Square, in the pleasant city of Merryport, was a crockery-ware store, over the door of which was a block sign bearing, in gilt letters, the name Benjamin Hudson—For many years this crockery-ware store had been there, with the great pitcher hanging in front for a sign; indeed, when Mr. Hudson first opened the store, some forty years previously, he was quite a young man, and the sign over his door was very bright and handsome; but now his eyes had grown dim, and the owner was called "Old Hudson" by all the boys and girls of the city.

The windows of this store had great attractions for all the children that passed that way. There were beautiful vases, handsome China mugs, with "Ellen," "Fanny," "William," and lots of other names inscribed upon them; there were also plates, with pictures on them representing Franklin's maxims; and funny clocks, shaped like dogs, that would roll their eyeballs to and fro every time they ticked, and many other things, curious and ornamental.

Mr. Benjamin Hudson had grown rich in his business, for he had conducted it all himself, and taken care that nothing should be wasted or lost by neglect. He had made mistakes, to be sure, as every man will make some blunders during a lifetime, but by skilful management he quickly recovered from them. Sixty-five years had begun to bend over Mr. Hudson's shoulders, and dim the brightness of his eye, and he found business more irksome than it formerly had been.

"I must have a partner," said he, one day to himself, as he sat before a cheerful fire.—'I must have some one interested in the business who is young and active, and will take the weight from off my shoulder, for I cannot do as I used to do."

Now, in Mr. Hudson's employ were two young men—Herbert Bond and Charles Sehmour. They had been with him an equal length of time, and had performed their duties faithfully and well. Charles did his work quickly, and had a smart way about him that made people think he was greatly superior to Herbert, who had a more quiet demeanor, and accomplished quite as much without making a greatstir about it.

"I must have either Herbert or Charles for a partner," soliloquized Mr. Hudson; "which one I cannot decide. They both do very well in the store, but I ought to know something of them out of the store, and I am sorry to say that that is a point I have never paid proper attention to. My clerks come here in the morning and go away at night; what becomes of them over night, I know not; and yet I ought to know. Neither of them have parents in the city; they live in some of the numerous boarding-houses, and I hope are steady and well-behaved. I must see them in their homes, and then decide which shall be my partner."

The next day Mr. Hudson ascertained the boarding-places of his two clerks, without letting them know for what purpose; and after supper, that evening, his wife and daughters were somewhat astonished to see him go to the hall, and put on his coat and hat.

"Where are you going, papa?" asked Lily, the youngest daughter, who could hardly remember the evening when her father had not remained at home.

"I am going to make a call, Lily, on two young men of my acquaintance; I shall not be gone long," replied Mr. Hudson. And, bidding them good night, he went out.

Herbert's boarding house was the nearest of the two, and here Mr. Hudson stopped first.

It was a neat looking house, in a very pleasant street. Mrs. Benton, the landlady, opened the door, when Mr. Hudson asked:

"Does a young man named Herbert Bond board here?"

"He does. Walk in, sir, and I will call him," replied the widow.

"I will go to his room, if you will show me where it is," answered Mr. Hudson. "I have some one in it?"

"I think so: he is seldom out in the evening. You can step up there if you like, it's up two flights, and the first door to the right is the one," replied Mrs. Benton.

Mr. Hudson pulled up the stairs, and knocked with his cane at the designated door. It was opened, by Herbert, who looked very much amazed when he saw his employer, and said:

"Why, Mr. Hudson, is anything the matter at the store? Anything happened out of the way, I hope?"

"No—nothing—nothing at all," said Mr. Hudson, walking in and taking a chair. "I took a notion to call around and see how you were this evening.

Bond expressed himself as being very glad to see his employer; and while he took his hat and cane, Mr. Hudson glanced around the chamber. It was an attic room, with two dormer windows; a good fire was burning in an open grate; a book-rack, filled with books, adorned one side of the room, while the centre of the floor was occupied by a table, on which were writing materials.

"You look very cosy here, Herbert; but why do you have an attic room? Are there none that you can have below stirs?"

"O, yes, sir; but this room is a dollar per week cheaper, and I have all the more money to send to my father," replied Herbert.

"Is n't your father well off?" inquired Mr. Hudson.

"Not very sir; he used to be pretty rich, but his business was disastrous, and he lost a great deal of money," said Bond.

"What do you find to do evenings? Does time hang heavy?

"O, no sir! I have books to read and letters to write. To-night I am writing home, they want me to make them a visit; but I write father that it is a pretty busy time just now but when it is over I shall ask you for a few days absence," answered Herbert.

"You shall have it willingly," said Mr. Hudson; and then he added: "Does Charles ever call upon you?"

"No sir. I have asked him to do so several times, but he has never called."

"Are you contented here in this boarding-house?" inquired Mr. Hudson.

"It is a very good boarding-house, and Mrs. Buntin treats me very kindly; but I often wish that I could live at home with my father and mother," answered Herbert.

"And why can't you? How far is it from here?" asked his employer.

"It is twenty-five miles, sir; rather far to travel every day, and then I cannot afford the expense," was Herbert's reply.

"What time should you reach the store in the morning

"At half past eight, sir."

"And you would have to leave at what hour in the afternoon?"

"About half past five, sir."

"Not very bad hours for business. Perhaps it can be arranged so that you can live at home, Herbert.

"O, I should like it so much, if I could! I am so homesick here in this city!" was the clerk's reply.

"Well, I'll look into the matter, Herbert. It seems a pity that one who is fond of his home can't live there, in these times of railways and fast traveling," said Mr. Hudson; and he rose to depart. Herbert thanked him for his visit and said it would please him to see Mr. Hudson again.

The old gentleman descended the stairs, well satisfied with the call, and said to himself: "Now for Charles Sehmour's. I hope I shall find him as well occupied as Herbert Bond."

On the way to the house, which was three or four streets distant, Mr. Hudson's attention was attracted to three young men, who were talking very loudly, and acting in a rowdy manner, pushing each other against the passers-by, and making rude, insulting remarks to them. It so happened that Mr. Hudson wore a white hat. So when these fellows passed him, they looked behind and said: "O, what a hat!" "Who stole the donkey?" "The man with a white hat!" and similar impolite observations. As they walked much faster than he did, they were soon out of sight.

The boarding house was reached the bell rang, and Mr. Hudson admitted. The servant said that Sehmour was in, and ushered him to his chamber door. Mr. Hudson knocked, and the door immediately swung wide open, and a voice exclaimed:

"Well old fellow, got along at last, have you? We're all ready for you; have you got the——" Charles Sehmour stopped here and his face turned deadly pale as seeing, instead of one of his boon companions, his wreadle employer. It was several seconds before he could recover his speech. "I beg your pardon, Mr Hudson;

The Beaver Argus.

J. WEYAND, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Beaver, Pa., November 11, 1868.

FOR GOVERNOR, 1869.

John W. Geary.

IMPARTIAL suffrage was carried at the recent elections in Iowa and Minnesota—in the first named State by about 30,000 majority, and in the latter by several thousand. This was the third attempt in Minnesota to carry this important measure, the vote increasing each time, the effort was made, until finally the friends were enabled to carry it through.

THE Congressional elections for 1868 are now all over, and out of 228 chosen the Republicans have 143, and the Democrats 85. Two years ago out of the 227 chosen the Republicans had 174, and the Democrats 53. Both of these estimates include the delegates from Territories. Virginia, Texas and Mississippi did not elect, on account of not having complied with the reconstruction laws of Congress.

THE result of the recent election indicates very clearly that a large majority of the people of this country are opposed to Repudiation Assassination and Nullification. These questions were leading ones during the canvass, and the people have pronounced their judgment upon all of them. That judgment is adverse, and no man or any party that has any regard for public opinion will ever undertake to open them up again. Let them then be buried forever out of sight.

IF Mr. Seymour is not too tired, we wish he would go around and make some more speeches. His orations seem to have had a pleasantly stimulating effect upon the Republican party, and wherever he has made them the effect has been perceptible in an uncontrollable impulse of the people to rush right off and vote for Grant. He made an elaborate speech at Indianapolis, and Indiana immediately multiplied her last Republican majority by ten, giving 10,000 majority against him. He went into Ohio, and that State replied to him with a majority something like 100 per cent. greater than the one of Oct. 13. The effect of his visit to Detroit and the towns along the Michigan Central Railroad appears to have been 27,000 majority for Grant, and the election of all the Republican candidates for Congress. He spoke in Chicago, and that city voted heavily against him, while Illinois gave the largest Republican majority of any State except Massachusetts. He canvassed Pennsylvania, and the October majority was at least doubled—the most remarkable increase being in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, where his principal speeches were delivered. After he had addressed the people of Buffalo, the strength of Grant and Colfax in that region was astonishingly increased, and the county, which gave 1,700 Democratic majority a year ago, now returns 1,400 majority for the other side. It seems to us that if the Republican National Committee could make a permanent engagement with Mr Seymour as a speaker it might be for the benefit of the party.—N. Y. Tribune.

WE this week hoist the name of Gen. John W. Geary as our candidate for renomination for the office of Governor of Pennsylvania in 1869. Gov. Geary is well known to the people of this State. His honesty, tenacity of purpose and patriotism are proverbial. As a soldier in the war with Mexico, he performed his duty promptly, distinguished himself in several engagements with the enemy, and contributed his full share toward making the Union arms illustrious in that campaign.

His career as Governor of Kansas during the infant and stormy history of that State made him the favorite of all who arrayed themselves on the side of justice, liberty and order. The border ruffians found no pliant tool in him, and he now wears the distinguished honor of being the first prominent public officer of the Government that had the courage to place himself between the freedom-loving people of the country and the aggressions of the slave power.

At the breaking out of the rebellion his love of country took him to the field at once, where he continued until the last armed rebel surrendered, rising in the meantime from a Colonelcy to the rank of a Major General of volunteers. But few men served their country more faithfully or better, and but few retired from its service with more of the respect or confidence of its loyal people than the subject of this brief notice.

During the period he has filled the office of Governor of this State, he has adhered rigidly to the principles of the Republican platform on which he was elected; and has also exhibited moral qualities, inflexibility of character, and a watchfulness over the best interests of the Commonwealth, that commend him to his party and the public as a man that has but few equals and no superiors for that position in Pennsylvania. The Republican party cannot, therefore, dispense with his services in that capacity now. It should nominate him at our next State Convention by acclamation; and unless we mistake the temper of the people, they will instruct their delegates to do so, and thereby thwart the "rings," "cliques" and political brokers who are laboring already to compass his defeat, so that a weak, facile, or it may be, corrupt politician can be nominated in his stead.

LESS than two months hence, the Pennsylvania Legislature will convene, and among the important questions to be determined will be the choice of a United States Senator in place of Mr. Buckalew, whose term expires. Both the latter and Senator Cameron residing in the East, the next Senator, as a clear matter of right and courtesy, ought to be taken from the West. But from certain unmistakable indications and movements this portion of the state is to be wholly ignored, and a Philadelphia politician, without claim, comparatively unknown, and with but meagre fitness, is to be rushed through and fastened upon the people for the next six years. Intrigues to this end have been going on for months past, money in lavish profusion is said to have been, and will be brought into requisition—the Philadelphia Custom House with its vast patronage, in part, or in whole, is already believed to be parceled out. Several gentlemen in our own town, are known to be identified with, and have been active in the movement for some time past, and the leading motive in dividing Republicans in this county and the establishment of a new paper in this place, is undoubtedly for the purpose of carrying out this Senatorial scheme, and for the justification and defence of all who may be engaged in it. Now the question naturally arises: Will the Republicans of this Senatorial and Representative District, permit themselves, without protest, to be thus traded off, and bound hand and foot, and handed over for the use and behoof of scheming politicians? Surely our Senators and Representatives will not suffer themselves to be drawn into such a movement. We ought to stand up, unflinchingly for our own section—for our own interests. Many sterling men in the west have already been favorably named for the position. We are not so scarce of material, that we must overlook our own section, and travel all the way to Philadelphia for a mere politician who, if report be true, has little else than shrewdness, cleverness and wealth to recommend him. We have such men as STANTON, ALLISON, MARSHALL, MOORHEAD, all of them able, true, tried and fearless—men who are intimately known to us—any one of whom would be watchful over western interests, would creditably represent the entire State, and would be an honor to the party honoring him with its confidence.

We trust our people will generally agitate the question, and seek by every honorable means in their power to thwart the schemes of selfish politicians, and aim for the selection of one whose interests are identified with our own, and who will represent us faithfully and creditably. We would respectfully suggest that the County Committee take early action in the matter—either for the submission of this question to a direct vote of the people, or the calling of a mass Convention, so that from the expression obtained in either way, the Senator and Representatives from this District will be enabled to vote intelligently, and in accordance with the wishes of their constituents.

A SECOND Republican paper is soon to be started in Beaver. Four-fifths of the Republicans believe this is intended and will be the entering wedge for a split in our party. Be this, however, as it may we wish now to call attention to a fact or two, hoping that our party friends will bear them in mind: The projectors of the new paper enterprize begin their work at a time when there is no disaffection in the party in any locality in the county. They commence their movement immediately after an election at which the heaviest majority was given in the county since 1860. If the future, then, does not exhibit the same harmony in our ranks, and our majorities dwindle down from year to year, in Beaver county, our working, thoughtful Republicans will be at no loss to know upon whom to fasten the odium or lay the blame.

In justification of their course, the malcontents speak disparagingly of the circulation of the ARGUS, and hold out the idea that their paper will find its way into every Republican family in the county! Now look at these statements from a practical stand point:—Every individual connected with the new paper, or who is known to be in sympathy with it, has, within the past five years been connected with the ARGUS, either as editor or proprietor. When they retired from it two years and a half ago, its circulation was scarcely one half what it is now, more or less of ill-feeling existed in the party all over the county, and in the language of one of their number "the ARGUS was a defunct institution." If they could not even give the ARGUS a circulation, but permitted it to die in their hands, is not the assumption a ridiculous one, that they can publish a paper now that will be acceptable to the party, and be a source of profit to its proprietors besides? As we said in our last issue the new paper will have special interests outside of the welfare of the Republican party of this county, to look after, and it is to these interests it will doubtless look for the "material aid" necessary to keep it going.

EDITOR ARGUS:—The advocates of the new paper profess great love for Gov. Geary, and assert that it will urge his re-nomination with great heartiness. Whilst glad to learn that it will be one of his supporters, we are not disposed to award much credit to its projectors for this newly-awakened zeal in his favor. It happens to be known that an organized opposition to his re-nomination was meditated but a few months ago. And it happens to be known furthermore, that the County Committee was sought to be formed with express reference to taking this county from Gov. Geary. If opposition to him is now withdrawn, it is either because such opposition is found to be useless or it is for the purpose of adding weight to and carrying out the pet U. S. Senatorial scheme, which for the present is to overshadow everything else.—Let the true friends of Gov. Geary keep a watch upon the movements of new converts.

REPUBLICAN.

QUITE a number, in fact, a majority of the townships and boroughs of this county made Republican gains on the 3d of November, over their vote at the October election. The official returns show gains as follows: Beaver borough, 1; Borough tp. 4; Bridgewater, 2; Brighton tp. 2; Chippewa, 2; Darlington 11; Economy, 8; Fallston, 2; Franklin, 6; Greene 22; McGuire, 2; Harmony, 8; Industry, 5; New Brighton 4; New Brighton (middle ward,) 8; New Brighton (south ward.) 3; New Sewickley (Feazle,) 11; New Galilee, 1; Patterson, 20; Rochester tp. 4; South Beaver, 3.

THE Democracy will have but ten members of the United States Senate, viz: One from each of the States of Ohio, Minnesota, California and New Jersey, and two from each of the States of Delaware, Maryland, and Kentucky. They lose a Senator in each of the States of Connecticut, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and Wisconsin, and gain one in New Jersey, one in California, and one in Ohio. The Senate, after the 4th of March next, will be divided politically:

Republicans	53
Democratic	10
Three States unrepresented	6
Whole number of Senators	74

Of these, sixteen are from the reconstructed States, including Tennessee.

THE executors of Hon. James Buchanan have contracted for the erection of a monument over the remains of the ex-President. It will consist of a solid block of Italian Marble, five feet high, seven feet and one inch long and three feet seven inches wide. The top and bottom will have heavy mouldings, and the stone will be encircled with a wreath of oak leaves and acorns around the entire surface.

Romance of a Submarine Diver.

John G. Green, the diver, whose unhappy death by his own hand we chronicled yesterday, was in his own time the principal actor in a little drama, the story of which is an illustration of the fact that as we unconsciously tread every day on the graves of the past generations so we daily meet in every walk of life, those whose hearts are the living tombs of buried hopes. Early in life he became deeply attached to a young lady in Chelsea, Mass., the beautiful and accomplished daughter of a wealthy citizen. The attachment was reciprocated, and although while the father of the lady looked with no favorable eye upon what he considered an unequal engagement he wisely forebore from active opposition. In return Green pledged himself never to claim the hand of his affianced until he had accumulated a sufficient to enable him to retire from a vocation so full of peril in its nature and, uncertain in its results. Lighted on by the star of hope he became the most daring and enterprising submarine operator of his time, now plunging down among the weird and strangely beautiful caves of the tropical seas which held the wretched galleons of Spain, and then exploring the bottom of Lake Erie for the sunken treasures of our commerce. Such enterprise soon brought its reward, and he was enabled to look upon the consummation of his hopes as very near at hand. When he undertook to rescue the treasure from the sunken steamer Atlantic he meant that it should be his last job of diving, and he communicated this fact with radiant face to the few friends who shared the cherished secret of his life. He entered enthusiastically upon the task, and this very impatience proved his ruin. During the progress of his work he imprudently insisted on descending while warm, against the remonstance of his comrades. The result is well-known. He was seized with paralysis and was dragged to the surface more dead than alive. From that attack he never recovered. He dragged out the miserable remnant of his life a melancholy wreck in health and in hopes. Moody and disconsolate he sought in the intoxicating glass temporary relief from the sorrow which opressed him. At length he has rashly ended his misery and his life altogether, and found in the suicide's grave the peace he vainly sought elsewhere.

HOW GEN. GRANT RECEIVED THE NEWS.

He Makes a Neat Speech and Says He Accepts the Responsibilities Without Fear.

A special dispatch to the Chicago Tribune dated midnight, says: This has been the proudest evening in all the history of Galena. The city, heretofore Democratic, yesterday gave a majority for her distinguished citizen, Gen. U. S. Grant, for President of the United States. The county gives him a larger majority by four hundred than it gave to Mr. Lincoln in 1864. This magnificent result, together with the triumphant election of Gen. Grant, was celebrated here this evening by a grand torchlight procession, bonfires, illuminations and other demonstrations of joy. The Galena Tanners with two bands of music and a procession of citizens numbering several thousand, marched to the residence of Gen. Grant, in front of which a splendid display of fireworks was sent up, after which three rousing cheers were given for the President elect. In response to repeated calls, the General stepped out upon the piazza and addressed the multitude as follows:

Friends and fellow citizens of Galena: I thank you for this additional mark of your kindness. Sufficient, I suppose, has now been heard of the result of the late election to show upon whom it has fallen to administer the affairs of the nation for the next four years. I suppose it is no egotism in me to say that the choice has fallen on me. The responsibilities of the position I feel, but accept them without fear. If I can have the same support which has been given me thus far, I thank you and all others who have fought together in this contest—a contest in which you are all interested, personally as much as, and perhaps more than I am. I now take occasion to bid you good bye, as I leave here to-morrow for Washington, and shall probably see but few of you again for years to come, although it would give me great pleasure to make an annual pilgrimage to a place where I have enjoyed myself so much as I have here during the past few months.

At the conclusion of this first speech of the President elect, the crowd gave nine deafening cheers for Gen. Grant, after which they proceeded to the residence of Hon. E. B. Washburne, who has just been re-elected to Congress, for his ninth term, by an overwhelming majority. After three rousing cheers were given for Mr. Washburne, he was loudly called for, and responded by tendering his heartfelt and grateful thanks to his old neighbors and friends for the magnificent demonstration before him, and for the opportunity of mingling his congratulations with their's at the splendid victory which had yesterday been achieved by the loyal people of the country in the election of one of our own citizens to the highest office in the gift of a confiding people, and to the grandest position in the world. [Great applause.] The election of Gen. Grant means that the country shall have peace; that the people shall have an honest and economical administration of the Government; the rights and liberty and property of all men, of all colors and climes shall be protected and vindicated throughout the length and breadth of the land. [Cheers.] All good people must rejoice in a result so auspicious, and which bears peace, happiness and prosperity to a great nation, and which challenges the profoundest interest of all lovers of liberty and good government throughout the world.

Bring on Your Hides.

We find the following certificates in a Chicago paper:

"This is to certify that we, the undersigned, State Sovereignty Democrats, have had our hides beautifully tanned by the firm of U. S. Grant & Co., and that the work was by them thoroughly done; and recommend the said firm as entirely competent to tan all the Democratic hides that may be brought to their tannery hereafter, according to the highest style of the art.

SUPPLEMENTARY CERTIFICATES.

This is to certify that I was one of the workmen in the said firm of U. S. Grant & Co., but, for reasons best known to myself, left said establishment, and now insist that the tanning must be done over again. I am in favor of trampling said firm in the dust, and declaring all its work null and void.

FRANK BLAIR Son of Old Blair.

I hereby certify that I "declined" to assist the said firm in their "tanning" operations, and predicted at Chicago, in '64, that they would make a "failure" of their work; and I regret they did not. HORATIO SEYMOUR.

This is to certify that I formerly believed the tanning operations of U. S. Grant & Co. to be "unconstitutional, null, and void," and I am of the same opinion still. I never gave the firm any aid or comfort. All the "bark" and "lye" I had I placed at the disposal of Mr. Jefferson Davis, opposition tanner, who recently failed in business. And I furthermore certify that the following memorandum from "The Rebel War Clerk's Diary" is correct, according to the best of my recollection and belief:

RICHMOND, Va., June 22, 1863.

"To-day I saw the memorandum of Mr. Ould of the conversation held with Mr. Vallandigham on file in the archives. He (Mr. Vallandigham) says if we could only hold out this year, that the Peace party of the North would sweep the Lincoln dynasty out of existence. He seemed to have thought our cause was sinking and feared we would submit, which, of course, would be ruinous to his party. But he advises strongly against any invasion of Pennsylvania, for that would unite all parties at the North, and so strengthen Lincoln's hands that he would be able to crush all opposition, and trample upon the Constitutional rights of the people. The President (Davis) indorsed on it his disagreement, as to the invasion of Pennsylvania. 'But,' added Mr. Davis, Mr. Vallandigham is for restoring the Union amicably, of course; and if it cannot be so done, then he is in favor of recognizing our independence."

And furthermore, the undersigned saith not, except that I want to beat Gen. Schenck, and go to Congress to carry out the principles of the Democratic party as laid down by Frank P. Blair, Wade Hampton and

CLEMENT L. VALLANDIGHAM.

"OLD JOE HOOKER" witnessed a Republican turn-out in Buffalo last week, and remarked to Mr. Griswold: "I hope, sir, you may be elected; and I also hope the loyal people of the nation will see to it that no man attains a public position who has at any time sympathized with the rebellion, or for a moment doubted as to his duty to our common country. The success of the Republican ticket in this contest is the salvation of the country, sir, and with Grant and yourself we shall have peace and prosperity."

The Movement of Western Breadstuffs.

The break in the Western breadstuffs trade affords another illustration of the injurious effects of dealers attempting to carry heavy stocks during the autumn in anticipation of better prices. On the 24th of October, in Chicago wheat which cost the holders in the early part of the season, $1,50 ₱ bushel, or over, was quoted at $1,25 with purchasers holding back in anticipation of a further decline. Flour, corn and other cereals declined in the same ratio, causing heavy loss to holders. There can be no doubt that these losses might have been at least partially averted by timely concessions earlier in the season. But as the commencement of the harvest, dealers appeared to think that they could carry their stocks at the prevailing prices, and held back in the face of the incoming crops. This action was chiefly based upon the expectation of a large demand for breadstuffs from England, and when the markets of that country proved to be better supplied than was anticipated, declines took place in the West.

At the present time the Western markets yield slowly to the influence of the reduction in prices, and operations are on a limited scale, and appear likely to remain so until the market has touched bottom. Thus the navigable season will probably terminate without any extensive movement of breadstuffs to the East. There are usually large accumulations of breadstuffs at nearly all the Western ports. In Chicago and Milwaukee the stocks are largely in excess of the quantity in store at the corresponding period last year. As navigation must soon close there is a prospect that these supplies will be largely increased during the winter, and that the capacity of Western store houses will be tested to the utmost. Grain moves slowly forward during the winter, when the close of the canals plate shippers at the mercy of railroad companies.

Western dealers have yet to realize that stocks of grain can be carried during the winter at lower prices in the East than in the West, and that the detention of breadstuffs from the market at this season of the year is ultimately injurious to nearly all concerned. In place of hurrying forward as much produce as possible during the last few weeks of navigation, it is usually held back, to be forwarded in the spring, frequently without any advance in prices. Statistics for the crop year of 1866-67 show that about 42 per cent of the supply of wheat, corn and oats was sent east during the first three months; 24 per cent, within the next six months, and thirty four per cent. within the last three months. It thus appears that fifty-eight per cent. of the Eastern supply is held back until after the close of navigation.

Another Enoch Arden Affair.

A Husband Returns After Twenty-six Years' Absence—He Finds his Wife Married, Claims and Receives her at the Age of Sixty-eight.

Thursday morning the subjects of this sketch passed through this city on their way from Putnam county, Indiana, to their home in Lincoln county, Kentucky, and from a gentleman who talked with them, we have obtained the following romantic story.

In 1843 John Elliot left his home and his wife, who had borne him eleven children, in Putnam county, this State, suddenly and in passion at some slight misunderstanding that had occured between them. He gave his family no intimation of his departure previous to leaving, and they never heard of him again until after the lapse of twenty-six years.

The wife believed her husband dead, and after two years' waiting she gave him up as lost to her forever; and married a respectable citizen of the county, named Ballou, and has resided happily enough with him near Cloverdale ever since, until last week. It was then that the first tidings of the supposed deceased husband were received by her.

It was in this wise that these tidings reached her. A letter came to her through the hand of a person who was a stranger. This letter set forth that if she would visit a little town several miles distant from Cloverdale she would meet an old and very dear friend, and urged her not to omit making the visit at a certain time. The letter impressed her strangely, and she concluded to visit the town named, at the designated time, and did so.

What was her surprise on entering the house where the meeting was appointed, to meet her first husband. Twenty-six years had passed, and time had left its impress upon the man, yet she recognized him at once, and threw herself into his arms; for notwithstanding she was now sixty-eight years of age the sight of her first choice warmed the loveing pulses of her heart, and broke open the fountain of her affections that had been so long sealed up. She threw her arms about his neck, kissed his wrinkled cheek, and wept like a girl, tears of joy.

The husband's heart was also melted into tenderness, and he embraced his aged but long deserted wife, with all the fervor of a young and ardent lover. The past was talked over, the sudden disappearance, long absence, and continued silence of the husband explained and then and there it was agreed that they would spend the remnant of their lives together.

The woman returned to her home in Cloverdale. She explained to her second husband all that had happened, and told him she felt it her duty to go with her first husband, from whom she had been so long separated. The second husband, Ballou, was loth to consent, but the woman was unchangeable in her determination, and he was compelled to acquiesce. Their worldly effects were divided, and on Monday last the old lady left Cloverdale to rejoin her husband in the little village where the meeting took place, and on Thursday they passed through this city on their way to Kentucky.

When the husband left home he wandered off to Kentucky, where he remained until the California gold discoveries created such an excitement in 1849. He was seized with the gold fever, and left for the rich places on the Pacific coast. There he worked and saved his earnings until he had accumulated some forty thousand dollars. With this he returned to Kentucky, purchased and stocked a farm in Lincoln county, and has been living on it ever since 1859. Having accumulated considerable wealth, he is now prepared to comfortably care for her whom he so cruelly deserted twenty-six years ago, and to give "a good start in the world" to the children she bore him—four of whom are yet living, and have families.

THE readers of the newspapers during the campaign that has just closed have seen a great deal said in them about "roughs," "repeaters," &c. Nearly every person knows what a "rough" is, but the character of a "repeater" is not so generally understood. The following card published in the New York Tribune, the day following the election, shows what the word "rep eater" means in the politics of the day:

The Repeaters.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR: At one of the polls yesterday, I saw a gang of about 20 roughs vote, and immediately proceeded to the next polling District, and voted again. It my time had allowed I could, no doubt, have seen them vote again and again at other polls. I asked a police officer if I could have any assistance in challenging them and was told that "I run a chance of having my head broke." The inspectors, police, and all in these two Districts were evidently, to me, in the "ring." From what I saw in an hour of the polls, I feel convinced that if a part of these fraudulent votes had been polled out in the city the Democrats would not have carried the State. If the Republicans would turn out with a little strength at their polls on election days, and be less fearful of "musses," we would be spared such disgraceful proceedings.

The Impeachment and removal of Gov. Reed.

TALLAHASSEE, FLA., November 7.—About 6 o'clock last night citizens to the number of one hundred or more were summoned by the city and county authorities to hold themselves in readiness to quell any riot. At 11 o'clock there were no indications of trouble, and the posse was discharged. The cause of the call was the conflicting orders Governor Reed and Lieutenant-Governor Gleason; fears were entertained that the colored people would be called on to support the action of the Legislature. The citizens were uneasy to-day, but they will not interfere, except to aid in the preserving of the peace, when they will render prompt assistance.

Rumors were on the street to-day that the plantation negroes have been notified to come in to-night, but the report may be doubted. One company of the Seventh regiment have been posted here, about thirty strong.

The Legislature adjourned this morning until January. There being no quorum present when the impeachment paper of several members held seats and voted whose seats had been declared vacant by the proclamation of the Governor, by reason of members accepting and occupying other public offices.

Governor Reed refuses to recognize the action of the Legislature, and declares it an illegal body.

Lieutenant Governor Gleason this morning demanded possession of the Executive office, and was refused by Governor Reed, who has to-day brought suit against Lieutenant Governor Gleason and Allen, Secretary of State, before the Circuit Court, for conspiring against the Government, and they are now under arrest. The general impression seems to be that Governor Reed is in the right.

Lieutenant Governor Gleason to-day issued a proclamation reciting the impeachment and removal of Governor Reed, and concluding as follows.

WHEREAS, Under the provisions of the Constitution of the State of Florida, the said Harrison Reed, Governor of Florida, is debarred from exercising the functions of the Executive offices of the State, and the administration thereof devolves upon the Lieutenant Governor of the State of Florida, and to issue my proclamation, taking possession of the Executive Department of the Government obey the laws of the State and preserve peace and quiet.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed this sixth day of November, A. D., 1868.

[Signed] WM. H. GLEASON
Lieut. Gov. and Acting Governor.
Attest: GEORGE ALLEN.
Secretary of State.

THE report that Andy proposes to veto the election of Grant lacks confirmation. Still, we may expect another fulmination from the White House, indicating that the occupant (pro tem.) considers the election of a military chieftain flatly unconstitutional. Let it take the form of a letter to Seymour, and let him come down to Tammany and make a speech about it. The supply of stump oratory seems to have been suddenly exhausted. By all means, let Frank Blair tell us how Grant is ever to be got out of the White House after he gets in. Let's have the matter ventilated somehow—anyhow.

"The Western Cabinet."—Our esteemed and genial friend at Beaver Falls, John Sims, Esq., has handed us a copy of the Western Cabinet, published in this town in the year 1811—57 years ago.

Court.—Court convened in this place on last Monday, and will be in session, if necessary, two weeks.—His Honor, Judge Acheson, and his Associates, Judges Lawrence and Duff, are all present. The attendance of people is quite large.

Radical Restoration.—Its good effects are permanent. It not only restores the color of the hair, but its quantity and natural glossiness. This is said by every one using Mrs. S. A. Allen's Improved (new style) Hair Restorer or Dressing, (in one bottle.) Every Druggist sells it. Price One Dollar. 4t.

On his way to Washington.—Gen. U. S. Grant, our President elect, passed through Rochester, this county, on last Friday night, on his way to Washington. He was accompanied by Judge Dent, Mrs. Grant's father, Gen. Rawlins, Col. Badeau, Col. Comstock and others.

Worth Knowing.—A correspondent of the Maine Farmer says: "Many a housewife may be glad to know, when she has a piece of fresh meat she wishes to keep a few days, that it can be successfully done by placing it in a dish and covering it with milk. Sour milk or buttermilk will do as well. I have practiced this plan for years."

Marriage of Mr. Colfax.—The Cleveland Leader, of the 20th ult., contains the following paragraph, which has more than a local interest: "Our next Vice President, Schuyler Colfax, was married on Tuesday, in Ashtabula county, to Miss Nellie M. Wade. Our congratulations go with the newly married couple. Those of the American people will be offered on Tuesday next."

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds"; to care for him who shall have borne the battles, and for his widow and his orphan's; to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Meeting of Return Judges.—The election return judges of this county met according to law at the Court House in this place on last Friday. Benjamin Bradford, Esq., of New Brighton, was chosen upon as chairman of the organization, and Messrs. H. J. Anderson and H. R. Moore were selected to serve as secretaries. Their footing up of the vote in the county for Presidential electors will be found elsewhere in this paper.

The Vote of the County.—On the 2d Tuesday of October the Republicans of this county polled 3,540 votes; the Democrats 2,675, making the total vote 6,215. The Republican majority at that election was 865. On the 3d of November the Republican vote of the county was 3,643; the Democratic vote 2,621, making the total vote of the county 6,272, or 57 more than was polled three weeks before. The Republican majority on Presidential electors on last Tuesday was 1,022.

The Democrats are greatly disgusted at the completeness of our victory, and are trying to console themselves with the idea that Grant will follow in the footsteps of Tyler and Johnson. At the rooms where they received the returns in Washington speeches were made by nine persons, five of whom expressed the belief that he would turn out to be a good Democrat. One thought he would prove a Cromwell, and another said he would probably be a Cæsar. Col. Cavanagh, Delegate in Congress from Montana, believed there would never be another election in the country. Bah.

Beaver Lodge I. O. of G. T. No. 300.—The officers of this Lodge for the ensuing quarter are as follows:

J. M. Smith, W. C. T., Miss Belle McKinley, W. V. T.; O. P. Wharton, W. S.; Miss Bino Talton, W. T.; Zelda McCreery, W. I. G.; Henry Weyand, W. O. G.; James Somers, W. F. S.; Miss Josie Dravo, W. A. S.; S. N. Dinsmore, W. M.; George Atkins, W. D. M.; B. B. Lakin, W. C.; Miss Martha Early, W. R. H. S.; Miss Emma Fawcett, W. L. H. S. Lodge meets at Wynn's Hall every Monday evening at 7½ o'clock, and it is expected that all members of the order will attend.

Go to Church.—There is nothing which helps to establish a man's character and standing in society more than a steady attendance at church, and a proper regard for the first day of the week. Every head of a family should go to church for an example. Lounging in the streets and bar-rooms on the Sabbath is abominable and deserves censure, because it lays the foundation of habits which ruin both soul and body. Many a man can date the commencement of his dissipations which made him a burden to himself and friends, an object of pity in the sight of enemies, to his Sunday debauchery. Idleness is the mother of drunkenness—Sabbath is generally an idle day; therefore, if it were not properly kept, it were better struck out of existence.

Fun at Home.—Don't be afraid of a little fun at home, good people! Don't shut your houses lest the sun should fade your carpets; and your hearts, lest a hearty laugh shake down some of the old musty cobwebs there! Let mirth and social enjoyment be the watchword of the evening home-circle! When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat and drink, and sleep, and work, a process has begun which tends directly to demoralization if not ruin. Every body, young and old, needs relaxation somewhere, and some time. Let it be in the bright cozy domestic sanctum just before the hour of retiring. Dropping into the pillow with a released, easy, buoyant spirit after a round of cheerfulness or merriment insures the refreshing slumber and healthful happy waking, which no other method will guarantee.

Oyster Supper, &c.—We are requested to state that an oyster supper will be given in Wynn's Hall in Beaver, on one week from next Thursday evening, by the ladies of the Beaver M. E. Church extension society. Proceeds for the benefit of the Church.

New Brighton Illuminated.—A friend in New Brighton informs us that that place was brilliantly illuminated on last Friday night in honor of the election of Grant. The whole town was in a blaze of light, emitted from Chinese lanterns, transparencies, &c. Among the most noticeable and making the finest displays were the banking house of the Messrs. Hoopes the drug store of Mr. Kerr-Mrs. E. Ed Egan's store Mr. Woodgrift's and Mr. Frank Hoopes' dwelling houses, the Keystone Hotel, kept by David Magaw, the dwelling of Mr. Bradford, Mr. Boswell's house, and Chas. Winter's store. Down town, Messrs. Miner and Merrick made a beautiful display of Chinese lanterns, hung on trees on each side of the street for several hundred feet; Mr. Eli Reno's house was also decorated very beautifully, and many others along Broadway, and in fact all over town. The side-walks were crowded for hours by persons enjoying the scene.

A Tough Old Man.—Jacob Winans, of Milton, Mahoning county, Ohio, was born in 1769, and married at twenty-one. His wife bore him seventeen children, fourteen of whom are now living, the youngest having turned fifty. He has frequently walked his fifty-five miles a day, carrying a pack. At the age of ninety-five years, he walked from Waterford, Erie county, Pennsylvania, to his present home, in two days. In July last, at the age of ninety-nine years, he walked from his daughter's residence in Garrettsville, to Milton, a distance of thirty-one miles, in less than six consecutive hours, with only one rest, the mercury being 96 deg. He has not tasted intoxicating liquors for over sixty years, never paid a dollar to his doctor or lawyer, has voted at every Presidential election since the adoption of our Constitution, and has served his country in two wars.

Use of Lemons.—Hall's Journal of Health says: When persons are feverish and thirsty beyond what is natural, indicated in some cases by a metallic taste in the mouth, especially after drinking water, or by a whitish appearance of a greater part of the tongue, one of the best "coolers," internal or external, is to take a lemon, cut off the top, sprinkle over it some fine loaf sugar, work it downward into the lemon with a spoon and then suck it slowly squeezing the lemon and adding more sugar as the acidity increases from being brought up from the lower point. Invalids with fever lishness may take two or three lemons a day in this manner with a most marked benefit, manifested by a sense of coolness, comfort and invigoration. A lemon or two taken thus at tea-time, as an entire substitute for the ordinary supper, of summer, would give many a man a comfortable night's sleep, and an awakening of rest and invigoration, with an appetite for breakfast for which they are strangers who will have their cup of tea or supper relish and "cake" and berries or peaches and cream.

Life in the South.—A gentleman residing in Beaver read a letter in our presence a few evenings ago, which he had just received from a brother in New Orleans. It was written a few days before the Presidential election. The writer has been a life-long Democrat. In this letter he gives a horrible picture of things in Louisiana. Murders, riots, street-fights, &c., are of hourly occurrence, and no man's life was safe for an hour if the word got out that he was favorable to the election of Grant and Colfax. Negroes were pursued and shot down daily like dogs, simply because they were negroes, and their murderers were never called to account for their misdemeanors. Judging from the contents of this letter not over one-half of the vote of Louisiana was cast at the recent election, and this was in consequence of the fear that most of those who would vote the Republican ticket would suffer violence for so doing. No wonder the Democrats carried that State for Seymour and Blair.

As fitting a thing as Gen. Grant could do after his inauguration as President of the United States, would be the restoration of Sheridan to the command of the Fifth District. When he was there before he repressed disorder and violence with but little ceremony. He would do so again, and we long for the time to come when he will have another opportunity of showing the country how a loyal commander can make loyalty respectable and treason odious.

AN EPITAPH.

IN MEMORY OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Died November 3d, 1868.

In the early years of the Republic
It was the representative of Democratic Ideas,
The advocate of Popular Progress,
The Friend of Freedom,
The Exponent of Constitutional Law, and
THE GREAT DEFENDER
UNION,
PERPETUAL, SACRED AND INVIOLATE, between the American People.

THOMAS JEFFERSON,
The Apostle of the Democratic Faith,
Wrote the Immortal Doctrines of its Early Creed, in
The Declaration of Independence, in the affirmation
that
All men are Created Equal, and are endowed by their Creator
With certain Inalienable Rights,
Among which are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness,
and
Reaffirmed it in the Prophetic Warning:
"I tremble for my Country when I remember that God is Just."

In its maturer years,
THIS PARTY,
Flushed with the long possession of Power,
Becoming Corrupt with the Patronage of Office,
Forsook its Principles,
Breathed the infected atmosphere of Treason, Inscribed "Slavery" as the legend upon its Banners,
and
Pledged itself to Fasten the Fetters on the Limbs of the Slave,
And to Plant the System
On Soil forever Consecrated to Freedom.
It appealed to the lowest Prejudices of the Masses against the Negro,
It denied law to a Man because he was Black, and honored Crime,
If perpetrated in the name of Democracy by a White.
It Lost the Confidence of the People, and then sought
By Secret Organization and wide-spread Rebellion, the
DESTRUCTION OF THE REPUBLIC,
THE OVERTHROW OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT,
and
THE ERECTION OF AN ARISTOCRACY IN THE SOUTH,
In which African Slavery should be the Corner-Stone.

During four years of War
To Vindicate the Majesty of Law and the Principles of Constitutional Government, it
SYMPATHIZED WITH TREASON,
Pronounced the War a Crime and a Failure, Attempted, By Disorders, Bloodshed and Violence, to Prevoke Civil War in the Loyal States, and PLEADED FOR PEACE ON THE BASIS OF DISUNION.

On the restoration of Peace,
Won by the Heroism and Sacrifices of our Defenders, the Party
Appealed to the Judgment of the People, and CONDEMNED TO DIE!
By the Voice of the Loyal Millions through the Ballot Box.—Soldiers' Friend.

CORRESPONDENCE.

INDUSTRY, Nov. 6th, 1868.

EDITOR ARGUS:—The great battle has been fought and won, and we rejoice with the joyful majorities of our nation. But of course our copperhead friends can't see the propriety of all this demonstration.

The election has gone against them after all their boasting of carrying the State for Seymour and Blair notwithstanding the warning of October. They feel particularly blue in our township, owing to the fact that we increased our majority, notwithstanding that several of our friends were absent. On Tuesday evening we made arrangements with the telegraph operator of this place to get the news from both east and west. At an early hour a large number of citizens collected at the station to hear also the first death knell of the Ku Klux Democracy. Soon the wires brought the result of the contest in the west, giving increased Republican majorities. A few of the unterrified ventured near enough to hear the first and second dispatches, when they left in despair, not receiving one grain of consolation. The cannon in the meantime continued to peal forth in thunder tones the triumph over treason and rebellion. The Cops soon hunted their holes to restore their shattered nerves, but all that cannon still pronounced death—death to all their long cherished hopes.

On Thursday night our village put on a gala day appearance, being handsomely illuminated. The large residence of our venerable townsman, Judge Cairns, presented a beautiful appearance—displaying the pictures of Grant and Washington. Jackman, McKenzie, Aber & Sons, Baker & Bros., Kerr, and others had their residences finely decorated with mottoes, transparencies, &c. The cannon also performed its part well in the general rejoicing over the good news from the east, west, north and south. The verdict is given that loyalty shall rule what loyalty won.

Yours, &c.,
QUI VIVE.

"DARNEL WEBSTER," remarked old Col. Gumper, as he trimmed a quid of nigger-head and fastened it securely between two decayed teeth in the left side of his mouth, "Darnel Webster was a great man. There was'nt nothin mean about him. I've learn him talk, but 'twan't his talk so much as his generosity that took me. He had a kinder careless way like, that kept him from gettin rich. He never seemed to think what things cost. I was comin up the Hudson river along with him once, and in the mornin' Darnel Webster and me was washin' our faces and slickin' our hair in the cabin, and he took out a tooth-brush and brushed his teeth. I didn't see no other tooth-brush around, so I borrowed his'n. And after I used it I handed it back to him, and what do you think? Why Darnel Webster just slung that tooth-brush right inter the river. And I spose next day he went and bought him a new one. That's all he cared about money! There ain't no sech men as Darnel Webster living now," concluded the Colonel meditatively, as he skwirted a stream of tobacco juice into the fireplace at the other end of the room.

THE Detroit Tribune refreshes the Democratic memory as follows:

Andrew Jackson was a carpet-bagger from South Carolina into Tennessee, and so poor, when a boy, that he was glad to take jobs of boot blacking. James K. Polk was a carpet-bagger from North Carolina into Tennessee, and carried his own clothes, when a boy, by catching coons and selling their skins at a shilling apiece. Thomas H. Benton was a carpet-bagger from North Carolina into Missouri, and very glad, when a young lawyer, to practice in justices courts for a fee of a meal of victuals. Stephen A. Douglas was a carpet-bagger from Vermont into Illinois, and taught school there, which was one thing the Southern Democrats had against him, for $15 a month and found. Lewis Cass was a carpet-bagger from New Hampshire into Ohio, and afterward into Michigan and so poor that he footed it across the Allegheny Mountains, in 1768.

Agricultural Colleges.

In accordance with the Congressional act, passed a few years since, Government aid in the shape of land script has been granted to sixteen institutions as follows:

	Land Scrip.
Yale College Scientific School	$100,000
Amherst College	360,000
Cornell University, Ithica, N. Y.	900,000
Centre County (Pa.) College	720,000
College, Lansing, Mich	240,000
College, Maryland	210,000
College, Hanover, N. H	150,000
College, Burlington, Vt	150,000
College, Madison, Wis	256,000
College, Morgantown, Va	150,000
College, New Brunswick, N. J	240,000
College, Lexington, Ky	330,000
College, Oakland, Cal	150,000
College, Providence, R. I	120,000
College, Manhattan, Kansas	90,000
University, Illinois	480,000
Total script	$4,796,000

What more striking comment upon the liberality and tendency of free democracy than this fact that our Government has in a short time given nearly $5,000,000 for agricultural education alone!

CIGARS AND TOBACCOS.—We invite the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mr. E. Goldsmith in another column of our paper. Mr. Goldsmith manufactures all the different varieties of cigars he offers to the public, and he feels satisfied that he can offer superior inducements to purchase from him. We would advise our readers to give him a call when in the city, and examine his stock and prices. Remember the place, No. 342 Liberty, opposite Wayne street.

The Howe Sewing Machines

ARE THE

OLDEST ESTABLISHED

OF ANY IN THE WORLD!

THEY BEING THE FIRST SEWING MACHINES ever made, and have been manufactured continually under the supervision of the original inventor,

Elias Howe, Jr.,

Since their first introduction 1845. Sheir improvements upon these machines made within the last two years and their rapidly growing popularity attests the fact that they have reached the very acme of perfection, and that they are not only the oldest established but the best in the world.

These machines do perfect work upon all fabrics whether fine or coarse, making a stitch; also, the invention of Mr. Howe alike upon both of the fabric. Sewed. The tensions, new, novel and unvarying, can be adjusted to any degree of tightness, and after being adjusted do not require changing, except for different threads.

To those who have used the Howe Machine, it is not necessary for us to speak; and we would only add to others who wish a perfect machine to be sure and see these machines before buying any other. Send for circular. Applications for agencies must be addressed to
